

Myles McCallum is an Associate Professor in the Department of Modern Languages and Classics at Saint Mary's University in Halifax, Canada. He received his PhD in Classics from the University at Buffalo, SUNY, in 2005, and has taught at Buffalo State College, Wesleyan University (Connecticut), the University of Connecticut, and the University of Nevada, Reno. He specializes in Roman archaeology and history, and he teaches courses in classical mythology, ancient Greek and Roman literature, and Latin.

He has published on archaeological ceramics, Pompeii, Roman imperialism in southern Italy, Italian urbanism, Roman villas, and Roman imperial properties. He is the director of the Basentello Valley Archaeological Research Project in Puglia (along with Dr. Hans vanderLeest of Mount Allison University), the Villa of Titus Excavations in the Apennines of Lazio (along with Dr. Martin Beckmann of McMaster University), and a collaborator on the Queen's University excavations at Caere on the Tyrrhenian coast of Italy. His research looks at the role played by imperial properties in the cultural development and social organization of rural Italy, cultural agency and the development of urbanism in Italy during the Republican period, and economic archaeology.

Sa A R Fasti Online Documents and Research, 435, www.fastionline.org/docs/FOLDER-it-2019-435.pdf
P W a M McCa T Va I ac La U a C a H c La ca D a c
M Athens Journal of Mediterranean Studies, 3.2: 121-150

M McCa Nc a Pa Ha a L G Ga a L Z a T Ba Va
Archaeological Research Project, July August 2014 (Comuni di Genzano di Lucania and Irsina, Province di Potenza and
Matera, Regione Ba ca a Pa B Sc a R 323

M McCa Ha a L a A a Ha Sa F c a Ba Va A c a ca
Research Project, July August 2013 (Comune di Gravina in Puglia, Provincia d